

Workshop on Sustainable Development Goals

Don't wait for opportunities, create them

YMCA Auditorium, Connaught place: On behalf of Oxford press a work shop was organised under Ms. Anahita Lee to encourage schools to be an active participant in achieving Sustainable Development Goals. In the workshop we practiced new learning methods to engage class in productive work: Voice levels, Working technics (Cave, Camp fire and Water hole) and thunderstorm. Teachers were encouraged to brainstorm on curriculum based activities which can be utilized to learn sustainable activities. We practiced few of the activities designed by the organizers for school students: Poster making, studio walk, post card writing to yourself from future, contributing to world table, drawing a superhero for goals, using objects to symbolize peace, Subject oriented activities etc. Teachers discussed from the projects schools have started to inculcate the values of sustainable development: Making school a No Plastic Zone, Recycled articles projects, save water rules, no trash zone, Use of clean energy sources, relating chapters with sustainable development goals etc.
