The Indian Heights School Dwarka, New Delhi, organized its annual interschool competition 'EUPHONY'. This year the theme of presentation for grade 2 students was 'If monuments could speak'. The participant had to dress up and depict a famous Indian monument and Ishani of Grade 2 Chinar, of J.M. International school had chosen the World Heritage site of Nalanda University in Bihar. In her presentation of less than two minutes she beautifully depicted that it was the biggest residential University of India, which once had more than 2000 teachers and 10,000 students from countries like China, Japan, Korea etc. It had a famous nine storied library building and the inspirational mathematician Aryabhata was also the student of this great university who was destroyed by the invader Bakhtyar Khilji. In 1956, the famous monument was rediscovered and steps were taken to revive its glory. She rightly said that we must appreciate our past, to make our present better. Her superlative performance, won her a second prize in the competition.
