

ITL Organised Symposium on Modern Day Reading

Date : 30 April, 2019
Organized by : The Dept. of English, ITL Public School.
Venue : Conference Hall
Attended by : Students of Classes X, XI, XII.

‘Every interaction is an opportunity to learn’. With the noble initiative to augment the literary and linguistic skills of the ITLeens, ITL Public School observed a language week named “Milieu of Expressions” wherein a gamut of activities were held to engage the students passionately into the luminous literary world. As part of the Language Week, a Symposium was conducted where a panel of guests comprising of Mr Sanjay Aggarwal, a Senior Producer in Doordarshan, Mr Manoj Mainker, Programme Executive at the Directorate General of All India Radio and Mr Indranil Mukherjee, an aspiring author of fiction graced the event. The eminent panelists discussed about the state of MODERN DAY READING among the children. The guests were felicitated with planters as a token of honour and gratitude. Rightly said by Atul Gawande’ Human interaction is the key force of overcoming resistance and initiate change"

The symposium gave a potent platform to the students to gain substantially on significant topics related to reading.

The topics touched upon in the event were

- How to inculcate reading habits?
- How to enhance reading skills among students?
- Best books that should be read and retained.

The seminar not only enhanced the four fundamental skills {listening, speaking, reading and writing} of English language but enabled students to gain knowledge of English language and implement the same with a wider range of expression. The students comprehended that careful listening and extensive reading hones one's writing skill and in order to be a complete reader one has to get exposed to variety of other literatures of the world which can make one a global citizen.

“Every human interaction offers you the chance to make things better”. The lively interaction and candid discussion with panelists and their knowledgeable deliberation was a lifetime experience for students helping them to gain knowledge a various aspects of reading.
