“Photography is an art of observation and has little to do with the things you see, and everything to do with the way you see them.” Elliot Erwitt

Abhivyakti Photography Club organized a photo walk for students to the centuries – old historic and UNESCO world heritage site “The Red Fort”.

With an aim to make photo walk enthralling but also inclusive and accessible to everyone, whether the photos taken with a handy smartphone or a professional device, whether the participant was an avid walker or just wanted to saunter along for some sight-seeing, Lal Quila proved to be an incredible subject to capture its iconic edifice, consisting of arches, massive walls of red sandstone, bastions, pavilions connecting water channels making it known as “the zenith of Mughal creativity”.

The photo walk established a thought provoking journey where students got to explore the entire complex and walked the walls of time, at the same time learning the complexities of capturing a perfect picture which speaks a thousand words. The walk concluded with explorers leaving with a transformative experience, a new feeling of altogether a different era in your city, a connection made with another walker or new skill they took back home using a different angle to appreciate what a rich culture this complex had to offer.
