Sadhu Vaswani International School for Girls pre-conference issue

" To deliver results for people most in need, secure global goods and create a stronger UN through full accountability

- BAN KI MOON, FORMER SECRETARY GENERAL, UNITED NATIONS

Letter from The Secretary General

Dear participants,

On the behalf of the Secretariat, it is my honor to welcome you all to the Third Edition of Sadhu Vaswani International School for Girls Model United Nations held from 23rd – 24th October 2019.

As the youth of today we have the chance to change the world change it into a fair, secured and lively environment for all. Everyday we get a chance to do something different. This is why we should start now and prepare ourselves by seizing each opportunity that will allow us to do so. Which brings me to the goal of our conference that is to encourage the youth to take part in different debates in order to meet with the worldwide challenges present today, while they learn to share their ideas and their standpoints working jointly with diligence.

Therefore, in order to give our delegates the chance to explore and debate on a variety of topics, this year's conference consists of five committees: The General Assembly, United Nations Security Council, The UN Commission on Status of Women, United States National Security Council and All India Political Parties Meet and our news outlet for all the committees will be featured by International Press. At SVISGMUN, we have committees which will appeal for all types of delegates.

SVISG Model United Nations conference 2019 will be a platform for bastion of curiosity and exploration. It is a place which will elicit enthusiasm and passion among its delegates, where one can unironically and unabashedly let their flag fly and find good company in doing so. A good conference for me is a blank canvas. It will be an environment which eliminates the barriers of the impossible and allows students to see a world in which their decisions could help millions of people live better and more fulfilling lives. As well as, it will be an opportunity for delegates to unleash their creativity and devise outrageous, ruthless, out-of-the-box schemes to attain their nation's goals. This flexibility, desire and motivation is what SVISGMUN 2019 seeks to achieve.

On a final note, we would like to thank you all for your interest in SVISGMUN 2019. We hope that you will embark upon this journey with us, to experience, to learn, and to bring a change in the world.

Sincerely,
Kriti Sharma
Secretary General
SVISG Model United Nations 2019

To my dearest, with love-Maa

"A survivor of sexual harassment and a mother writes a letter to her daughter to prepare for the hardships that would be thrown at her"

Dear Daughter,
I am writing this letter with a sense of wry reminiscence. The time has passed by and you are 24 and ready to join the workforce.

Well, the world is not an easy place to live, especially for the people who are trying to break apart from age old shackles of subjugation and unjust treatment. As a woman, you may have to prove yourself and work twice as hard compared to a man. You may be told to keep your opinion to yourself. You may have to work more or in an unhealthy environment. The world is rapidly developing in terms of superficial things but, no early will it develop its mindset. Till then, the idea of true equality remains a distant dream. You will struggle and witness the dichotomies present at your workplace ranging from unequal wages to violation of labor rights, oh no, they do not exist for us. Apparently, labor performed by women is not labor.

But never back down, never give up and always help other women. Do not let anyone define you or your worth. Speak for yourself and don't forget the value of your own voice. I made the mistake of being ashamed of my story and that is one thing I regret till date. Don't make this same mistake. Let this letter be a source of learning, inspiration and hope.

Love,
Maa

When I landed in Libya....

BY: SONAKSHI VERMA

The dreadful war has begun with the Arab protest of 2011 which lead to a harsh civil war and foreign military invention. People said it has engulfed many Like Muammar Gaddafi and lot many, To investigate, whether their claims were genuine I landed in Libya, a country, known for its ancient Greek and Roman ruins and Sahara desert landscapes.

When I opened my eyes...

It was a terrible site,
bloodshed from everywhere to everywhere.

Bullets, guns, rifles
7 shots, 9 shots choked,

I can't breathe

Please don't shoot.

People - slaves, begging for food and life,
Ropes around throats...

And I watch them hang.

Dead bodies on fields, in mines, on boat, in the ocean,
Thrown overboard, drowned.

I could hardly see for smoke blind my eyes.

My heart filled with sorrow, sunk.

This is the place of death

I claim.

May God give these souls there respective peaceful aims.

Analyzing the Triple Talaq Bill 2019

BY MANSHA KAUR BINDRA

“Finally the Triple Talaq judgment came in favour.

A young lady cheered, not only because she was a victim, but also because she was happy that her little daughter will not face the same” - Wahwnoor

As the Triple Talaq Bill 2019 has been passed by both houses, Triple Talaq is now a criminal offence. It proffers its provisions to give a jail term to a Muslim man committing this crime. It has been a blessing for the Muslim women who had put up with a lot of disrespect, insecurity due to this plain sailing way out available to Muslim men.

This bill has been embraced with open hearts not only by Muslim women but also by each and every Indian. It is a step that will amplify the self-respect of the women, their dignity and equality in the society. It is a question of humanity being answered in such a manner that the male whip hand is being strictly brought to standstill.

The journey was not easy; it also had its share of hurdles in the way. Every coin has its flip sides even its path of becoming a bill was being argued as unnecessary. But with the due course of controversies, finally strong pitch of consensus in the parliament made it a bill.

Protection of US National Security Innovation base

BY: CHAVI GOGNA

Someone rightly said “What’s dangerous is not to evolve”,

On 7 August Raghav Dua and Devshree Sharma were announced as the President and Rapporteur of USNSC which will be conducted on the agenda of “Protection of US National Security Innovation base”.

Since National Security Innovation Base is a new term in defense argot, it pays to discuss briefly what it means. Past defense strategies have mentioned the importance of the defense industrial base, often thought of as the traditional defense industry and exemplified by the top five defense contractors: Lockheed Martin, Boeing, Northrop Grumman, General Dynamics, and Raytheon. Significantly, the strategy states that the accelerating pace and increasingly commercial nature of technological advancement will require the National Security Innovation Base to adopt changes to industry culture, investment sources, and protection. While US(united states) citizens are busy in making memes about there former president. The need of establishing a strong innovation base is increasing.

Is there an end to it?

We have all lost our faith in humanity. brotherhood and peace are just mere words.

There were days when we said a nation shall be strong armed on borders to avoid intrusion and ensure safety of it's citizen. But nobody ever taught us that there can be dangers on the inside as well.

Terrorism has grown to such an extent hat no place can be marked safe and no face can be called trustworthy. Since our childhood we are taught to not to touch any unattended material, not to take things from strangers and not to go to dark places but when will the world teach these murders of humanity a lesson?

From the Westminster crash to Notre Dam bombing to 9/11 and many other attacks, one thing has been made sure that this will not end until we com together as one force.

Responsibilities have been taken, many have been punished too but the big road is yet to be covered. To many combating a hundred percent terrorism is a distant goal but if we don't start from today, humanity will have to pay it's price. It will lead to more brutal killing, more bombings, more homes will be dislocated, more children will become orphans and more families will never rejoice.

Terrorism is not just another crime it is a global issue. It is commonly said that these groups do not fear a soul... it's high time we tell them it's their time now fear not vice-versa.

Yet a question.....

Will they ever be punished? Will every nation ever pledge to take the safety of it's citizens seriously?

Or will it take a thousand more deaths for the forces to come to senses?
