

WUTHERING HEIGHTS

Date: 23/11/2023

~ By Emily Bronte

This gothic romance novel opens up with a man of the name Mr. Lockwood who comes as a tenant at Mr. Heathcliff's house. To his surprise, he finds Heathcliff a lot more reserved and ^{exceedingly} ~~den~~ ~~shost~~ - bad temperament than himself. Curious, he decides to make it a point and learn more about his life and the reason behind his sordid demeanour. That's when Ellen Dean, the former keeper of the house viz Thrushoberry Grange comes into picture and narrates the story of Mr. Heathcliff's life and how he arrived to the Grange in the first place. It is in the midst of this absorbing narration that we are introduced to Cathy, Catherine Earnshaw, who a close acquaintance and potential love interest of Heathcliff. As the narration progress we see a shift paving its way out into the lives of Heathcliff and Catherine, which in turn contributes to bring about a surreal change in their lives.

Q Why do I like this book?

This book connects us to a perception of reality through its immersive and realistic narrative. It made me care about the ~~car~~ characters even though they are deeply flawed. The writing style is such that it makes me anticipate various plots and endings about ~~the~~ books and making it extremely hard for me to put it down.
