2. Read the given case study and answer the questions that follow.

We are born to travel. As nomadic tribes, people moved in search of food, water and shelter. As settlement became more permanent, people searched for other things like new lands, trade routes and cultures. This was the time of Marco Polo, Christopher Columbus, Vasco da Gamma and many others who travelled the world for the same reason. Another group of people that travelled in the past were the holy men. They travelled in the name of religion prompting pilgrims and missionaries into foreign lands to spread their god's word. People in the modern world travel in search of livelihood, to discover new and existing places, and to attend marriages, birthdays and pilgrimages.
